CWA National Human Rights

An Overview

About

CWA Human Rights is an international network of union and community organizers who fight for social and economic justice.

We are led by the CWA National Civil Rights & Equity Committee and the CWA National Women's Committee.

We educate our membership on racial and gender justice issues that impact our union and the greater community.

We engage with progressive organizations and individuals to take action and cultivate a strong solidarity that encompasses all working peoples' struggles.

EDUCATION

We offer two dynamic trainings that can be used at locals, district meetings, and conferences. The trainings are adaptable to your specific needs.

- Building an Anti-Racist Union Training
- Gender Justice Training

We also host The Dennis Serrette Minority Leadership Institute (MLI), a program that provides education and leadership development to people of color, women, and the LGBTQIA+ community.
